Handwritten text in the top right corner, possibly a date or signature.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written on aged, yellowed paper and is mostly illegible due to fading and the style of the script. There are two distinct sections of text separated by a horizontal line. The first section is on the left, and the second section is on the right. The text appears to be a list or a series of entries, possibly names or dates, written in a cursive hand. There are some faint markings and a small dark spot on the left side of the page.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely Arabic or Persian, covering the majority of the page. The text is arranged in approximately 15 horizontal lines. There are two distinct dark circular marks, possibly holes or ink smudges, located in the middle of the page.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written in a single column across the page. The script is dense and flowing, with many small, connected letters. There are several large, stylized initial letters or symbols at the beginning of lines, possibly indicating the start of a new section or a specific type of entry. The paper appears aged and slightly discolored, with some visible wear and tear, including a small dark spot near the center.

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem. It is shown that the problem is of great importance and that it has not been completely solved. The author then presents a new method for solving the problem.
The method is based on the use of the variational principle. It is shown that the method is very simple and that it can be applied to a wide range of problems. The author then gives some numerical results and compares them with the results of other methods. It is shown that the new method gives results which are in good agreement with the results of other methods. The author then concludes that the new method is a very useful tool for solving the problem.
